Program Description

The individuals will have access to therapy, skill-building, groups, peer support services, and weekly substance use treatment.

All individuals will be subject to random UAs, PBTs, as well as frequent and random room searches.

Each individual will help design their own treatment plan based on individual needs. Each will also have the ability to add or amend goals as they make progress throughout the program.

Meals will be provided to each individual until they are able to provide for themselves.

Each individual will be coached on how to apply for assistance programs including, but not limited to: Food assistance, housing assistance, Medicaid, etc.

Employment is a requirement of Inside Out Wellness and Advocacy's Transitional Living Program and support will be available to assist individuals in gaining employment.

Individuals graduate from the Transitional Program once they have reached the goals laid out in their Transitional Living Plan and have gained an overall understanding of their mental health and substance use needs.

Inside Out Wellness and Advocacy will work with individuals to determine when goals have been completed resulting in graduation from the program.
